Keeping Our Kids Safe Series

A Family Conference

Children of all ages are using technology. They are flocking to the internet and using cell phones. A source of recreation, communication, and research, technology advancements are wonderful tools that can enhance our lives, but there is also material that can be harmful and can lead to the victimization of our children. Children often engage in behaviors that they would not want their parents to know while using technology.

This presentation will address these questions and more:

- What parental controls are available to protect my children online?
- How can I find out if my child has a MySpace account?
- What is online grooming?
- What do the online abbreviations and acronyms mean?
- What is the school's cell phone policy? What should my home policy be for cell phones?
- What is cyber bullying?

More than 30 million internet users are younger than 18 years old. Sexual predators frequent chat rooms looking for children whose innocence and naïveté facilitate their victimization. This program will provide an understanding of the dangers associated with the use of the internet by our children. Participants will gain knowledge of responsible technology use for both adults and children. Current, candid, and essential information will be provided to parents, teachers, and everyone interested in the safety of our children.
